G. Absences and Illness

Students will obtain advance approval for planned absences, for example job interviews, from both their preceptor and faculty advisor. The student must make up the time absent before each rotation is considered complete. Students must arrange with preceptors and faculty advisors to make up such hours.

In the event of an unplanned absence, for example illness or car trouble, the student must notify both the preceptor and faculty advisor in a timely manner. Documentation of the event may be required. The student must make up time absent before each rotation is considered complete.

A student's failure to do any of the above may result in an unexcused absence that can result in failure of the rotation.

Any student who seeks medical attention due to an accident or illness must provide a release from the physician stating the student may resume rotations. The release should be submitted to both the preceptor and their experiential education faculty.
