Have you chosen a career path?

THE AL HARRIS LIBRARY

is hosting an informative & entertaining session on

Wednesday, April 21, 2004

3:00 p.m.

Library Instruction Room, Second floor

Refreshments will be provided.
Come to this informative and entertaining session on librarianship as a career!

If you’re not sure what career path you will be taking or have always wondered what librarianship is all about, you could find your answers on April 21 at 3:00 p.m.

Sharon Saulmon, Director of the Learning Resources Center at Rose State College, will be representing the Oklahoma Library Association. She will discuss the possible career choices within the library field (public library, academic library, media specialist/public schools, special library, and information technology services).

Dr. Danny Wallace, Director of the University of Oklahoma School of Library and Information Sciences, will be representing the only ALA-Accredited Master’s Degree Program in Oklahoma. He will provide information about OU’s Library and Information Science Master’s Degree Program, student admission, course work, areas of degree specialization, and further academic pursuits.
Our Guest Speakers:

Sharon Saulmon

is currently Director of the Learning Resources Center at Rose State College in Midwest City, and she has also held public library positions. She holds an M.L.S. degree from the University of Oklahoma, an M.B.A. from the University of Central Oklahoma, and B.A. from the University of Central Oklahoma. Sharon is active in the Oklahoma Library Association, including serving as Past President. In her current position as Chair of Career Recruitment and Retention Committee of the Oklahoma Library Association, she has worked extensively to develop information about library careers. Listed in Who's Who in America, Sharon is also active in library-related organizations and her community college campus community.
Dr. Danny P. Wallace is currently Director and Professor of the University of Oklahoma School of Library and Information Sciences. Before coming to Oklahoma, he held several professional positions, some of which include Director of the School of Library and Information Science at Kent State University, Associate Dean and Associate Professor of the School of Library & Information Science at Louisiana State University, and Visiting Associate Professor at the University of North Texas.

Dr. Wallace holds a Ph.D. in Library & Information Science from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, a M.A. in Library Science from the University of Missouri-Columbia, and a B.S. from Southwest Missouri State University.

Dr. Wallace is the author of numerous professional publications. His most recent publication is "'The Spirit of Learning is a Lasting Frontier:' Distance Education in Library and Information Studies at the University of Oklahoma," in Daniel Barron, editor, Benchmarks in Distance Education: The Library and Information Studies Experience (Englewood, CO: Libraries Unlimited, 2003), 199-203.